

WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTION POLICY

All employees have a responsibility to guard against and report unethical business practices and actions (including questionable accounting and auditing matters) that can subject Zayo Group Holdings, Inc. (the “Company”) or any of its employees to civil or criminal liability. Pursuant to the charter of the Audit Committee of the Board of Directors and applicable regulatory requirements, it is the policy of the Company to establish and maintain a complaint program to facilitate (1) the receipt, retention and treatment of complaints received by the Company regarding its accounting, internal accounting controls, auditing matters or violations of the Company’s code of conduct, and (2) the confidential, anonymous submission by employees of the Company of concerns regarding questionable accounting or auditing matters. In order to carry out these responsibilities, the Company has adopted this Whistleblower Protection Policy (the “Policy”).

Scope

This Policy applies at all times to all employees of the Company, its directors and consultants (collectively the “Covered Persons”).

This Policy is intended to address the process for reporting, and the protection for Covered Persons who raise concerns regarding the Company such as:

- Violation of any applicable law, rule or regulation that relates to accounting standards and financial disclosure;
- Fraud or deliberate misstatement in the recording and maintaining of financial records of the Company;
- Fraud or deliberate misstatement in the preparation, evaluation, review or audit of the financial statements of the Company;
- Deficiencies in or noncompliance with the Company’s internal accounting controls;
- Misrepresentation or false statement to or by an employee of the Company regarding a matter contained in the financial records, financial reports, or audit report of the Company;
- Any deviation from full and fair reporting of the Company’s financial condition and/or results of operations;
- Unlawful activity;
- Activities that are not in line with the Company’s policies, including the code of conduct; or
- Activities, which otherwise amount to serious improper conduct.

Procedures

Reporting Violations

Violations by Others

If a Covered Person knows of, observes, suspects or becomes aware of a violation of applicable laws, regulations, or the Company's code of conduct, or a questionable accounting or auditing matter, that Covered Person must report that information immediately to his or her direct supervisor or another appropriate representative of senior management. After a reasonable period of time, if the Covered Person believes that the person to whom he or she has so reported has not taken appropriate action he or she should contact the Company's General Counsel directly. If appropriate or necessary the Covered Person also may contact the Chairman of the Audit Committee of the Board of Directors or the Compliance Helpline in connection with any suspected or known violations relating to financial reporting by the Company.

Violations by Oneself

If a Covered Person believes that he or she may have violated the law or business ethics standards, or engaged in questionable accounting or auditing practices, he or she must report this behavior to his or her direct supervisor or another appropriate representative of senior management immediately. The fact that the Covered Person reported the violation, together with the degree of cooperation he or she displays, and whether the violation is intentional or unintentional, will be given consideration in an investigation and any resulting disciplinary action.

Confidentiality

Complaints or concerns may be submitted on an anonymous basis, such as sending complaints by letter directly to the General Counsel or the Chairman of the Audit Committee. Covered Persons may also use the anonymous Compliance Helpline to report a complaint or concern. The Compliance Helpline is intended to be used for serious or sensitive issues.

Necessity of Reporting

Unless responsible members of management learn of a problem, the Company cannot deal with such problems appropriately. Concealing improper conduct often compounds the problem and may delay or hamper responses that could prevent or mitigate actual damage.

Covered Persons should contact the Company's General Counsel with any questions about legal, regulatory or ethical issues.

Investigating Violations

All reported violations of applicable laws, regulations or business ethics standards, or violations relating to financial reporting by the Company, will be promptly investigated in accordance with the Audit Committee Procedures for Handling Reports of Potential Misconduct and will be treated confidentially to the extent practicable under the circumstances.

Employment-related concerns such as disputes among employees of the Company should continue to be reported through normal channels such as via the supervisor, Human Resources, or the Compliance Helpline.

Upon learning of probable or actual misconduct, supervisors must notify the General Counsel and in consultation with the appropriate professional take appropriate steps to stop any misconduct and prevent its recurrence. Supervisors who fail to take appropriate action may be held responsible.

Retaliation

The Company prohibits retaliation against any individual who, in good faith, reports or expresses concerns about a violation or suspected violation of applicable laws, regulations, or business ethics standards, or a violation or suspected violation relating to the financial reporting of the Company, or against any individual who participates in, or otherwise supports, an investigation of such reports. Anyone who retaliates against an individual under such circumstances will be subject to disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment.

Reporting Retaliation

All Covered Persons are strongly urged to report all incidents of retaliation, regardless of the offender's identity or position, so that an effective remedial action can be taken when appropriate. Complaints may be made in writing or orally or through the Compliance Helpline.

If a Covered Person believes that he or she has experienced conduct that is contrary to this Policy or has concerns about such matters, the first and most effective recourse may be to tell the individual who undertook the conduct that the behavior was perceived as inappropriate. Often such open communication can clear up a misunderstanding. However, a Covered Person may at any time report the matter to their direct supervisor or the Company's General Counsel. If the problem involves an employee's supervisor or if there are other reasons for not approaching or for going beyond the supervisor, the complaint should be brought to the Company's General Counsel, our Audit Committee Chairman or Compliance Helpline, as applicable.

Investigation of Retaliation

Any reported allegations of retaliation will be investigated promptly. The investigation may include individual interviews with the parties involved and, when necessary, with individuals who may have observed the alleged conduct or may have other relevant knowledge.

Confidentiality will be maintained throughout the investigation process to the greatest extent possible consistent with completing an adequate investigation and applying the appropriate corrective action. The Company will take every reasonable action to protect such employees from any retaliation for reporting violations or suspected violations of applicable laws, regulations, business ethics standards, or violations or suspected violations relating to the financial reporting of the Company.

Consequences of Retaliation

Retaliation may subject the perpetrator to disciplinary action by the Company, up to and including termination. In addition, unlawful conduct may subject the offender to civil, and in some cases criminal, liability.
